Oman Investment Authority achieves 21% growth in asset value

Oman Investment Authority (OIA) has revealed that its "National Development Portfolio" has achieved several objectives aligned with "Oman Vision 2040" since its establishment in 2021. The portfolio manages over 160 local assets and companies across 10 key sectors. The authority has set key targets for these companies, including financial sustainability, investing in projects that support Oman Vision 2040, and developing human capital by generating job opportunities for Omanis and implementing a localisation plan within the OIA and its subsidiaries. Additionally, the portfolio aims to maximise local content by increasing spending on small and medium enterprises (SMEs) and raising the proportion of local content in the total value of contracts awarded by the OIA and its affiliated companies. From 2021 to the end of 2024, the portfolio delivered strong performance, achieving an annual asset growth rate of 21.5%, bringing total assets to approximately OMR12.1 billion by the end of 2024. Revenue also grew by 25%, reaching OMR82.8 billion. Furthermore, the portfolio contributed OMR3.7 billion to the state's general budget, invested OMR8.8 billion in long-term assets, and attracted OMR638 million in foreign direct investments.

Asia stocks dip as US rating downgrade, mixed Chinese data weigh

Most Asian stocks fell on Monday as a U.S. rating downgrade and mixed economic prints from China kept investors on edge over slowing growth in the world's largest economies. Regional markets fell tracking steep losses in U.S. stock index futures, with S&P 500 Futures falling 0.8% in Asian trade. This came after Moody's downgraded the U.S.' Aaa investment grade rating over the weekend, citing concerns over stretched government debt and a lack of clear measures to address the issue. The downgrade weighed on sentiment, which was already cooling as a stock rally sparked by a deescalation in the U.S.-China tariff exchange petered out towards the end of last week. Focus was now on more economic signals due in the coming days, including a Reserve Bank of Australia meeting, Japanese consumer inflation data, and a host of U.S. Federal Reserve speakers. China's Shanghai Shenzhen CSI 300 and Shanghai Composite indexes lost about 0.4% and 0.1%, respectively, while Hong Kong's Hang Seng index fell 0.6%. All three indexes trimmed some of their intraday losses after data showed China's industrial production grew more than expected in April, despite headwinds from steep U.S. trade tariffs. But other economic indicators still showed cracks in Asia's biggest economy. Retail sales grew less than expected, pointed to sustained weakness in consumer spending, while fixed asset investment- a gauge of business spending- also missed growth expectations. Broader Asian markets largely retreated on Monday, as sentiment was quashed by weak signals from the world's biggest economies. Australia's ASX 200 was flat, with local investors awaiting the conclusion of a RBA meeting on Tuesday. The RBA is widely expected to cut interest rates by 25 basis points, amid continued signs of cooling inflation in the country. But analysts expect the RBA to sound hawkish on future rate cuts, given that the central bank is still grappling with a host of uncertainties- over Australia and the global economy. Japan's Nikkei 225 and TOPIX indexes fell 0.3% and 0.1%, respectively, mildly extending losses after a dismal gross domestic product print on Friday. Japanese consumer inflation data for April is due later this week, and is widely expected to factor into the Bank of Japan's plans for future interest rate hikes. South Korea's KOSPI fell 0.7%, while Singapore's Straits Times index shed 0.3%. Gift Nifty 50 Futures futures for India's Nifty 50 index fell 0.3%, pointing to a weak open for the index after it clocked stellar gains last week.

Oil prices tick down amid oversupply worries; China factory data shows resilience

Oil prices ticked lower in Asian trading on Monday after weekly gains, as oversupply concerns persisted amid U.S.-Iran nuclear talks, while investors assessed Chinese factory data showing resilience despite the effect of U.S. tariffs. Investors were also cautious as the global ratings agency Moody's downgraded its investment grade rating on the U.S. As of 23:23 ET (03:23 GMT), Brent Oil Futures expiring in June inched 0.3% lower to $65.20 per barrel, while West Texas Intermediate (WTI) crude futures also fell 0.3% to $61.77 per barrel. Both contracts gained more than 1% last week, driven by a surge at the start of the week, when the U.S. and China agreed to temporarily lower soaring tariffs placed on each other. However, most of these gains were offset by oversupply concerns, Moody's US downgrade, Trump-Putin talks in focus. Moody's downgraded the U.S. sovereign credit rating on Friday to Aa1 from Aaa, lowering it one notch from the top-tier rating. The agency cited concerns over the country's ballooning $36 trillion debt, an issue that could worsen under President Trump's proposed tax cuts. This led to a cautious sentiment among oil traders, who were already grappling with developments leading to a potential increased supply. Trump said last week that the U.S. was getting very close to securing a nuclear deal with Iran, and Tehran had "sort of" agreed to the terms.
